

Labour Campaign for International Development

The Labour Campaign for International Development is a group of Labour supporters committed to ensuring that the Labour Party acts to support a world without poverty & injustice.

Labour Campaign for International Development aims to:

1. Keep international development high on the agenda of the Labour Party, and raise awareness of international development issues among Party members.
2. Hold the Conservative led-Government to account by scrutinising their every move against our own record.
3. To re-engage people who have turned to single issues campaigns back into the Labour Party and the political process, by demonstrating that it is only the Labour & Co-operative Parties who can deliver on international development.

Labour's Record

A Labour Government has made the Britain a world leader at the forefront of fighting global poverty:

- Helping lift 3 million people out of poverty each year.
- Helping to get some 40 million more children into school.
- Polio is on the verge of being eradicated and 3 million people are now able to access life-preserving drugs for HIV and AIDS.
- Improving water and sanitation services for over 1.5 million people.

"Tackling poverty is one of the greatest causes of our time. The Labour Party and the Labour Government has been on the frontline in the fight against global poverty and now the Labour Campaign for International Development will provide a way in which members who care about the issue can keep informed, contribute policy and help keep it high on the agenda."

- Gordon Brown
